

Etiquette That Books Repeat Work — Set-Day Checklist

Nobody trains you on when to speak, when to disappear, or how fast to move when the schedule collapses. Now it's written down.

BEFORE CALL TIME

- ☐ Kit packed against the brief, not against habit — plus the one thing nobody asked for.
- ☐ Names memorized: photographer, producer, key MUA, talent handler.
- ☐ Arrive 15 early; find your station and the power outlets before you're asked.

ON SET

- ☐ Match the room's volume. The set's energy is the client.
- ☐ Fix quietly; flag loudly only what risks the shot.
- ☐ When the schedule collapses, your job is speed without visible stress.
- ☐ Touch-ups: be near, not hovering. Watch the monitor, not your phone.

AFTER WRAP

- ☐ Leave the station cleaner than you found it.
- ☐ Thank the two people who made your work possible today — by name.
- ☐ Within 48h: one follow-up message with a specific detail from the day.

YOUR ADDITIONS

The three rules you've learned by flinching — write them so you never relearn them:

CURLS & CONTEMPLATION · MICHAEL DAVID

The full system is in the book →
curlscontemplation.beauty